- Neither use of this website to contact Durham & Galindo, PLLC, nor your receipt of information from this website creates an attorney-client relationship between you and Durham & Galindo, PLLC. Unsolicited Contact submissions/emails do not create an attorney-client relationship and confidential or sensitive information included in such messages cannot be protected from disclosure. An attorney-client relationship can only be created by the mutual assent of both parties, only after a personal consultation, and only after a conflict-of-interest check has been completed.
- The contact forms on this website should not be used to provide confidential or sensitive information about your legal matter.
- Nothing posted on this site constitutes legal advice. Since legal advice must be tailored to the specific circumstances of each case, and laws are constantly changing, nothing on this site should be used as a substitute for the advice of competent legal counsel.
- Content presented on this site is meant only to provide information about our activities and experience, and is not intended as a guarantee of future results. The outcome of a particular matter depends on a variety of factors — often, unexpected developments beyond the control of any client or attorney.
